

DESIGNER-INSPIRED T-SHIRT SCARVES

Materials needed:

- old t-shirts (large or X-large)
- fabric scissors

Instructions:

First, cut the bottom hem off the shirt, then cut right under the armpit.

Next, fold it in half (hot-dog way) so that the seams meet each other. Then cut 1" or 1.5" slits on the seam side. My cuts are 1.5". Then cut all the way across the t-shirt at each slit.

After cutting, you should have fragments like this.

Take each segment and stretch. It will naturally curl, which is what you want.

After stretching, your pieces will look like this. Line them up with the seams together.

Since you do not want the seams to show, wrap another scrap of t-shirt around the seams to resemble a small knot.

And, viola!

It can be worn long or wrapped once around for a more bulky look.

It is fun playing with different color combinations.

It looks very nice with braided t-shirt strands.

This great hand-made gift is surprisingly easy, fashionable and comes from the heart.
